Master programme African Studies

This interdisciplinary and interfaculty MA course offered by the Centre for African Studies Basel can be started both in autumn and spring semester, whereby the preference is on autumn semester when introductory courses are offered. Core classes are taught in English or are offered in English on request. German language skills will allow for a wider choice of courses.

Curriculum

The curriculum builds directly on the axes of research of the Centre for African Studies at the University of Basel and thereby allows for the integration, on the one hand, of current research interests in teaching activities and, on the other hand, of excellent students into the various research groups.

Specialisation

Students build a specific profile by choosing two out of five thematic modules in which they will specialise. These are the modules in which they will write their two long-papers and, in one of them, their MA-thesis. Please consult the Wegleitung and Studienplan for the MA African Studies valid from 1 August 2013. An English translation is available from the student advisor listed below.

Additional courses

Recommended courses of free choice (Komplementärbereich) as well as courses at neighbouring universities are listed in this brochure.

Semester-Apéro

A reception for newcomers and current students of the Centre takes place on Monday, 17 September 2018, 12h15 at the Centre for African Studies Basel, Rheinsprung 21. New students are firmly expected to attend.

Counseling

Beginners contact the Centre for African Studies for student counselling, ideally before the start of their studies, in order to establish their individual study-portfolio. They are also required to join the mailing list of the Centre for African Studies (email to zasb@unibas.ch) whereby they will receive a weekly newsletter and event-calendar. Furthermore, those on Facebook are encouraged to join the group "Centre for African Studies Basel" which unites students and friends of the Centre.
